TRUSTEES CONVENTION IN CALGARY

February 2, 3, and 4 about 800 Alberta trustees will meet in Calgary in annual convention. The larger school units will come under fire, there being strong opposition to this in many places, the general feeling being that the larger unit will increase the cost at a time when it is already hard to meet expenses.

When sick of all the sorrow and distress
That flourish in the city like foul weeds,
I sought blue rivers and green, open-out meads,
And leagues of unregarded loneliness.
Whom no foot of man had seemed to press,
I did not know how great had been my needs,
How wise the woodman's gospel and her creeds,
How good her faith to one long comfortless.

But in the silence came a voice to me,
In every wind it murmurs, and I know
It would not cease though far my heart might roam
It called me in the sunrise and the dew,
At noon and twilight, sadly, hungrily,
The Jealous City, whispering always
"Home!"
"The City" by Charles Hanson Towne.

Men become fully conscious of what they have done only some centuries after they have done it.

The worker has, of course, only this choice—to go and work for wages or to starve.

Today waste, on a scale unparalleled in the history of the world, is the dominating fact of life.

Conflict is to the essence of the pursuit of power.
(From John Strachey's "The Continuing Struggle for Power").

ARNDENDE

A very quiet wedding took place in the Vicarage of St. Mary's Cathedral in Calgary last Monday, Jan. 17th when Miss Mae Owens became the bride of Mr. Pete Kleiner of Strathmore, in the presence of their immediate relatives. some cats and can't do it so how.

The district was well lit up on Sunday afternoon when the old tank car on the railway went up in smoke. No there was no excitement folks, it was all done on purpose. Mr. Crawford the B. & B. master of Calgary came out and started the blaze. Now the section men have a nice new car to live in.

Woe, sleekit, cowrin', tim'rous beastie,
Oh, what a panic's in thy breastie!
Thou needs start'st awa' see hasty,
Wi' lickerin' brattle!

I wad be laith to rin and chase thee,
Wi' murdering patie!

A king can mak a belted knight,
A marquis, duke, and a' that;
But an honest man's aboon his might,

EDUCATIONAL WEEK FEBRUARY 6 - 12

In view of the very marked changes taking place in the methods of teaching and the new subjects added, Educational Week this year, should arouse a very lively interest, and impel all interested to attend the meetings being held in the various centres. Parents and all interested should avail themselves of this opportunity to learn more of the changes that are being made. There is some discussion on both diversified education as to the future of the child.

A meeting will be held in the Strathmore High School on Wednesday, February 10th at 8 p.m. when the new methods will be outlined and every opportunity given for discussion.

All interested should go to one of these meetings with an open mind, ready to ask questions on points on which he is not clear and thus become more fully in touch with the instruction of the day.

HIGH LIGHTS OF THE U. F. A. CONVENTION

Among the two-score resolutions adopted by the convention were those asking federal subsidy of all farm crops, establishment of a wheat board with producer representation, continuance of drought area rehabilitation, investigation of livestock marketing, discontinuance of the provincial government's program of enlarged school units until those already established have been proved beneficial and until ratepayers in other projected districts have been consulted, and ceasure of the provincial government's use of patronage in the civil service.

—[101]—
THE BUSH HOMESTEADER (G. D. Osborne)

By the laws of God, I am a free man. He gave the world to make what I can. The first thing I did I took up a homestead, with trees.

In a short time I knew I was wrong in the head. For this I know, God is not to blame, but somehow or other, I was fooled just the same.

The Land Agent said, "Ten dollars please." When I got to it, 'twas all covered with trees.

They were tall and healthy, looked looked very grand. Well, says I, that means some good rich land.

I built my shack, called it "Home, sweet home." Here, says I, I can be all alone. Built or straight logs and chinked with moss.

In this little place I will surely be boss. The next thing in order, was to clear the land.

With axe, saw and beetle, I gave a glad hand. The first tree I saw I gave a hard whack.

And learned very quickly it was hard on the back. I puffed and I snorted before that tree would fall.

For it had to come out, stump, root and all. When it finally tumbled and on the ground did lay,

I was so dazed I called it a day. Then home to the shack with my aching weary feet.

For a cup of tea and a bite to eat. As on my way back I lay mourning, I wondered from where my pay was coming.

With hands all blistered and overall torn. I was badly disgusted and very forlorn I rolled and I tumbled all through the night.

The mosquitoes so thick they put out the light. Along came the depression making times so hard.

STRATHMORE TRADING COMPANY

A. D. SHRIMPTON, MGR.

STRATHMORE ALBERTA

That for supper I had only some bread and some lard. After dreaming bad dreams got out of my bed.

And for a change at breakfast, had lard and bread. I applied to the Government for some needed relief.

The darned old Mountie called me a traitor. Back to the homestead with guns in a trunk.

I dug some more rabbit out of the pot. Would visit my neighbor and get a big feast.

Of homegrown hammock made of flour and yeast. Back to the homestead I quickly would get.

And with a cup full of salt I would make it yet. Next came a neighbor, my binder to sell.

That was four years ago, it isn't home yet. Not only the men borrow but women as well.

When you ask for return, some say—go to it. You may think this all flimsy and not a bit true.

Just ask for their names, I'll send them to you. The women, poor souls, God certainly will bless.

I haven't seen one with a real decent dress. The girls are fine but they cry and they howl.

When they have to go counting in blue overall. The kiddies, poor things, come in for their share.

When they have to sleep at night in beds of moose hair. In the morning for breakfast they have tough moose meat.

And all the day long they go with bare feet. They are stunted and starved and cannot grow. It needed for soldiers, they would make a poor show.

They have no shoes with which to make tracks. Oh, you hard hearted Ains, why put on the lard.

You have upbraid the teachers with high salaries in schools. And the homesteaders pay the price like a big bunch of fools.

You have travelled and studied, you have done your best. But you haven't done a darn thing better than the rest.

My land I have plowed and seeded to grain. I knew I would grow with plenty of rain.

It looked nice and green and grew very high. But a frost came and ruined it the middle of July.

If the frost failed to come and it grew nice and tall. Along would come a snowstorm and bury it all.

Six years have I labored, raised only one crop. Have now decided homesteading's a trap.

I labored and starved, done the best I could. All I have to show for it is plenty of wood.

Have tried to be cheerful, meet life with a smile. But this Bush Homesteading is not worth howl.

Am now getting old, cannot longer do my part. So here's my experience for the Home Loving Heart.

Prairie Echo, Alberta. The author of above lines was one of the pioneers of the Cereal district and is wide and favorably known by a large circle of friends who will read his experience in the Peace River district with much interest.
